

CryoUSA is proud to announce the launch of our newest Whole Body Cryotherapy unit, the Arctic™.

Designed to deliver the safest cryotherapy session in the industry by eliminating exposure to gasiform air and reducing the risk of skin overexposure, the CryoArctic is a fully enclosed single person chamber. Built using state-of-the-art technology, it ensures that clients are never in direct contact with nitrogen vapors.

The CryoArctic features a window with a push button slide enabling the client to choose between a fully-enclosed or partially-enclosed cryotherapy. The partially-enclosed mode allows the client to experience a cryotherapy session without breathing the subzero air during the treatment.

Each CryoUSA Arctic unit comes equipped with a multitude of safety features, including but not limited to, two built in oxygen monitors with automatic shutdown, ventilation, and emergency stop controls. The unit itself is controlled from a touchscreen display showing the time and temperature during each treatment, as well as controls to slide the window up or down during the session. Like all cryochambers offered by CryoUSA, the CryoUSA Arctic will have wireless connectivity for diagnostics.

- Cabin temperature from -166°F to -266°F
